- The offer of NTT DATA EUROPE is successful with more than 89 percent of itelligence AG shares
- All conditions for a successful transaction have been fulfilled
- The additional two-week acceptance period, as required by German law, starts on 20 December 2007 and lasts until midnight of 2 January 2008

Tokyo/Japan and Bielefeld/Germany – 19 December 2007. At expiration of the acceptance period of the voluntary public takeover offer for itelligence AG, NTT DATA EUROPE, the wholly-owned subsidiary of Japanese IT company NTT DATA CORPORATION, now has 89 percent of the shares of the Bielefeld based SAP services provider at its disposal. Almost 76 percent of the shares were tendered during the acceptance period that ended at midnight of 13 December 2007. This includes shares of itelligence CEO Herbert Vogel and his wife, who tendered about half of their itelligence shares. Another stake of approximately 13 percent was secured through an agreement with Nobel SA, so far the second largest shareholder of itelligence AG. With all offer conditions having been fulfilled, an additional two-week acceptance period follows, as required by German law. All itelligence shareholders who have not yet offered their shares to NTT DATA EUROPE can do so in the period from 20 December 2007 to midnight of 2 January 2008.

NTT DATA EUROPE will publish the final number of itelligence shares tendered during the additional acceptance period on <http://www.nttdataeurope.com>.

"We are very happy that the majority of itelligence shareholders have accepted our offer", says Takashi Enomoto, Executive Vice President at NTT DATA. "Now, we look forward to tapping the full potential of this partnership together with itelligence."

Herbert Vogel, CEO of itelligence adds: "I am glad that our shareholders have recognized the great benefits of this cooperation for our company. The partnership with NTT DATA is a perfect strategic fit, and I am excited to lead itelligence into the future with such a strong IT group behind us."

The transaction is part of NTT DATA's expansion of its global IT service capabilities. The leadership of itelligence in the SAP environment and its strong market position in the mid market are of great value for the Japanese IT company. itelligence gains access to NTT DATA's multinational clients and to the Asian region.
